MEN NO LONGER PAINT FACE

Newspaper Makes Cruel Assertion That Custom Is Now Exclusively Confined to Women.

Relies of Indian art are shown in profuse quantities at the Field museum in the form of stone or clay saucers like the "nests" in which painters mix their water colors,

One of the many uses to which these bits of stone or clay were put was to hold the pigments with which the original residents of Chicago bedaubed their faces.

there frequently ran Although through all the color designs applied to men's faces and breasts certain lines. characteristic of a tribe, there was a wide latitude for individual choice.

If Chicagoans of the pale and pastyfaced variety now wear evening clothes or frock or cutaway coats on formal occasions, the original male leaders of local society wore vivid dashes of paint on their faces to distinguish important scheduled moments of either peace or war.

In the whirligig of time this aboriginal masculine custom has been appropriated by the women of today as their exclusive practice-and the men are well satisfied with the radical change in fashion.-Chicago Journal.
